Faith and Witness under Pressure

An afternoon with Richard Sewell, Dean of St George's College, Jerusalem. Dean Richard will reflect on the work of St George's College as the Anglican centre for pilgrimage in the Holy Land, and on what it means to sustain Christian faith, hospitality, and public witness amid political tension and uncertainty. Drawing on lived experience, the session will consider how pilgrimage, listening and encounter shape the Church's vocation today.

The Church in Jerusalem Today Faith, Pilgrimage and Witness

A panel discussion exploring the contemporary realities facing the Church in Jerusalem and the wider Holy Land, with attention to pilgrimage, theological reflection, and the responsibilities of global Christian partnership, as well as how current issues are felt in local communities and inform public life in Britain today. This session is designed to complement the Cathedral event on Thursday evening.
